ICDE World Conference on Online Learning 2019

Register Your Interest for the ICDE World Conference on Online Learning!

Held every second year, the ICDE World Conference is the largest and most prestigious international event exploring new, open, online, and flexible models of education. Next year, the 28th ICDE World Conference on Online Learning will be hosted by Dublin City University (DCU) in Dublin, Ireland.

The conference takes place in 2019 from 3 November to 7 November at the Convention Centre Dublin. For more information and registration of interest, visit the conference website.

Online Learning in the International Spotlight

Global demand for online education continues to grow internationally. Professor Mark Brown (DCU) noted previously that, in Ireland, "the demand from part-time mature students for more online and flexible learning pathways continues to increase as people look to earn as they learn." In 2017, DCU alone accepted a record number of new registrations for online degree programmes.

Gard Titlestad, ICDE Secretary General, also reported, "DCU submitted an outstanding case to host the 28th ICDE World Conference, which in November 2019 will attract to Dublin the world's leading scholars, researchers, innovators, policy-makers, industry partners and practitioners working in the field".

The conference theme is: "Online Learning - Transforming Lives and Societies"

World-Class Venue in the Heart of Dublin

The Convention Centre Dublin is a world-class, state-of-the-art conference venue in the heart of Dublin. Located just 20 minutes from the airport and minutes from Dublin Port, the venue is easily accessible by road and rail, and walking distance from many hotels.

Designed by award-winning Irish-born architect Kevin Roche, the venue has quickly become a landmark building on Dublin's skyline. Its stunning glass-fronted atrium gives visitors panoramic views of the River Liffey, the Dublin city centre and the Wicklow mountains.
